THE LIQUID CHEFS AT ESQ

Taking inspiration from the Victorian era, our resident mixologists and their team have created signature cocktails based on influences during the Victorian times in the City.

The Victorian era undeniably left its mark on London. Queen Victoria herself was born at Kensington Palace and several London landmarks were constructed during that period including Big Ben, Tower Bridge, the Victoria and Albert Museum, The Natural History Museum and The Science Museum.

That era also saw the re-emergence of gin's reputation. The harsh, sweetened "Old Tom" styles of gin of the early 1700s slowly gave way to a new cleaner style called Dry Gin.

This style of gin became identified with the City of London to the extent that the term "London Dry Gin" became a generic term for the style, regardless of where it was distilled.

The bar team's modern approach and innovative techniques will contribute to a memorable experience.

VERMOUTH & APÉRITIFS

Vermouths, other aperitifs and digestifs have been a constantly popular part of the drink world for decades. Drunk on their own or used as cocktail ingredients, they are versatile and flavoursome drinks that deserve further exploration.

WHAT IS VERMOUTH?

Vermouth is an aromatised fortified wine, made by adding botanicals to wine which has had spirit added to it. They are usually around 15%-20% alcohol by volume (ABV) and come in a variety of different styles.

Sweet vermouth – often called sweet red vermouth or vermouth rosso, as the most popular ones have a deep red colour, or Italian vermouth, after the country where the style was popularised.

Dry vermouth – a key ingredient of the Martini cocktail, these white vermouths are less commonly drunk neat, but can be a refreshing aperitif.

AMARO

The Italian for 'bitter', amaro is a herbal liqueur that is usually drunk as a digestif. Produced by macerating herbs and spices in alcohol, then bottled at around 30% ABV.

BAROLO CHINATO

Cinchona bark is steeped in Barolo wine (a full-bodied red made from the Nebbiolo grape) and flavoured with herbs and spices to produce a full-bodied robust digestif around 16% ABV.

FERNET

Fernet is an extra-bitter style of amaro, produced by adding herbs and spices to spirit, and usually bottled at around 40% ABV.

GIN

Gin is, at its simplest, a spirit flavoured with a variety of botanicals, with the predominant flavour being juniper. Despite that simple start, it is a spirit with a long and turbulent history, as well as a vibrant present and future.

Gin has always been a popular drink in Britain, and spread during the reign of the British Empire and then beyond to all corners of the globe. Many gins are now tailored to the taste of the localities where they are consumed, leading to a wide range of styles, flavours and ingredients, from the historical to the ultra-modern.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

Juniper has been used for more than 1,000 years as a medicine to treat rheumatism, arthritis, loss of appetite (as well as overactive appetite) and gout.

London Dry Gin can be made anywhere in the world.

If you are making a Martini, then you must use gin.
If you make your drink using vodka, you have actually created a classic cocktail called a Kangaroo.

JENEVER

The ancestor of modern gin, jenever is produced in Belgium and the Netherlands, where it is still extremely popular. There are three main types of jenever; jonge (meaning young), oude (old), and korenwijn (corn wine). Originally invented around the middle of the 18th century, jenever is a blend of two ingredients: malt-wine and neutral spirits.

VODKA

Vodka is much more interesting than it might appear to the casual observer. Scrape beneath the surface and you'll find a spirit with a rich and diverse history, made from a variety of raw materials, each of which affect the finished product's final taste, and sometimes flavoured with quite a bewildering array of different fruits, herbs and spices from every corner of the globe.

Once you start to delve into the world of vodka, you'll find a fascinating product with bags of history and a wide range of styles and flavours. The raw material used has a big effect on a finished vodka's taste, as does the mind-boggling variety of herbs, spices and fruits used as flavourings.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

The word 'Vodka' is Russian for 'Little Water'.

Vodka sales in the US were transformed in the 1950s by the Moscow Mule cocktail (vodka, lime juice, ginger beer).

Before 1885, vodka was only sold in Russia in 12-litre buckets.

RUM

The multicoloured tapestry of rum styles spanning the Caribbean, Central and South America is as rich as the history and culture that encircles this great spirit. From cocktail-friendly white rum, through to mellow golden examples, to molasses-rich navy bottlings, no other drink spans such a spectrum of colours and flavours.

If rum's most obvious manifestation is a clear spirit diluted with coke or submerged in a Mojito, its identity is harder to pin down. From fiery over-proof to complex, sipping-only pot still, each country and every distillery has its own inimitable take on this most versatile of spirits.

Bacardi was produced in Cuba from its inception in 1862 until Fidel Castro seized power in 1959. Most of its rum is now made in Puerto Rico, but the Bacardi building – topped by its distinctive ‘bat’ sculpture – remains one of the finest art deco structures in Havana.

TEQUILA

Beyond shots, slammers and hangovers, Tequila is a remarkable drink which can express the nuances of its raw material arguably better than any other spirit on the planet. The key to its unique flavour is the spikily distinctive blue agave plant, which gives Tequila its trademark flavour combination of fruit, pepper and spice.

Everyone knows Tequila – or at least they think they do. But there's so much more to this world-class spirit than headaches and nausea from ill-advised drinking sessions. It's subtle, distinctive and, in its finest form, as complex and worthy of contemplation as any fine Cognac or single malt.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

The blue agave plant is not a cactus, despite its spiky appearance; instead, agave tequilana is a succulent that more closely resembles a lily.

According to regulator Organisation Consejo Regulador Del Tequila, there were 150 distilleries making Tequila in 2013, and no fewer than 1,377 registered brands.

Roughly 85% of all Tequila is consumed in Mexico and the United States, with the latter accounting for 75% of export sales.

COGNAC & BRANDY

For the past three centuries, Cognac has been almost universally recognised as the finest of all the spirits that are distilled from grapes. It has many incomparable qualities: fruitiness, subtlety of bouquet, intensity, warmth and, above all, the complexity of the many thousands of styles and flavours from a (predominantly) single grape variety.

About 80 miles or so north of Bordeaux lies the two picture-postcard towns of Cognac and Jarnac, the heart of the Cognac industry. The region, stretching from La Rochelle in the north to Royan in the west and Angoulême in the east, is home to nearly 6,000 grape growers who supply white wine for distillation, predominantly made with the Ugni Blanc variety (aka Trebbiano).

Cognac has several categories, which reflect the time each one has spent in barrel.

VS ('Very Special') Cognacs must contain eaux-de-vie no younger than two years old

VSOPs ('Very Superior Old Pale') must be at least four years old

XO ('Extra Old'), as well as bottles labelled 'Napoléon', 'Extra' and 'Hors d'âge', it's six years, although this will rise to 10 years from 2018 (with the exception of Napoléon).

In practice, most of the XO Cognacs contain eaux-de-vie much, much older than the legal minimum.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

The equivalent of 20 million bottles of Cognac are lost each year due to evaporation ('The Angel's Share').

Just 3% of all Cognac produced is drunk in France.

If you visit the Cognac region, you'll come across warehouses covered in what looks like black soot. This is actually a fungus, Torula Compniacensis, that feeds on the evaporating Cognac vapours.

SCOTTISH FINE BLENDED WHISKY

Roughly nine out of ten bottles of Scotch sold around the world are blends – that is, a mix of grain and single malt whiskies. These products are the lifeblood of the industry and the liquid expression of an art form that borders on alchemy: combining myriad components to create one harmonious and consistent whole.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

Johnnie Walker, the world's best-selling whisky, sold more than 20 million nine-litre cases in 2013 – equivalent to more than 450 bottles every minute.

JAPANESE WHISKY

The early years of Japanese whisky are dominated by two men: Masataka Taketsuru and Shinjiro Torii. Taketsuru was famously sent to Scotland in 1918 to learn about whisky-making, studying in Glasgow and getting hands-on experience in Speyside and Campbeltown before returning to Japan with a head full of facts and a Scottish wife!

When he joined forces with Torii in about 1921, Taketsuru's vision was to build a distillery on the remote northern island of Hokkaido – the part of the country he thought most mirrored Scotland. However, Torii feared this was too far from the main markets of central Honshu, vetoed the idea and instead built Yamazaki on the outskirts of Kyoto in 1923.

IRISH WHISKEY

The Irish may have been the first distillers in the British Isles and, for a brief period in the 19th century, Irish whiskey reigned supreme over its Scottish rival. Boom was followed by bust – and near extinction – but today the good times are back, with distilleries popping up all over the Emerald Isle.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

Jameson was produced at the Bow Street Distillery in Dublin from 1780 until 1975, when it relocated to the new Midleton Distillery in Cork.

ENGLISH WHISKY

Plenty of English whisky was produced in the 19th century, but when the stills of the Lea Valley Distillery fell silent in 1903, nothing happened for almost a century. Now, whisky is being made from Cornwall to Cumbria.

English Whisky Co. Peated Chapter 9 Norfolk 15

Cotswolds Single Malt 15

FRENCH WHISKY

France is whisky central: no country on the planet drinks more Scotch. But the whisky producers are, for the most part, doing something very different to the distillers of Speyside – something, somehow, defiantly 'French'.

Armorik Maître De Chai Batch 3 Lannion 18

INDIAN WHISKY

India is ostensibly a huge whisky-drinking nation – the biggest of them all if you look at the bare consumption figures – but nearly all the domestic ‘whisky’ produced here is dominated by molasses-derived spirit (and therefore, according to EU legislation, not whisky at all).

Amrut Fusion 18

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

Eight of the top ten bestselling whiskies in the world are Indian.

India’s climate means more water evaporates during maturation than in Scotland so the alcohol by volume rises.

Indian whisky sold outside the EU is usually made mainly of molasses (like rum!).

SCOTTISH SINGLE MALTS

Malt whisky is the ‘original’ whisky of Scotland. Malt whisky is made only from malted barley, in two (occasionally three) copper pot stills, by a batch process. ‘Single’ malt whisky is the product of an individual distillery.

WE ALL LOVE SOME LITTLE STORIES

More than one billion bottles of Scotch are exported every year, with France the biggest market.

The first reference to Scotch whisky was in 1495.

The first single malt to be marketed outside Scotland was by Glenfiddich in 1963 in an individual distillery.

AMERICAN WHISKEY

Whiskey is made across America, from Washington to Virginia. From sweet Tennessee whiskies to spicy rye and unaged corn, the country uses a wide variety of grains in whiskey production.

SINGLE MALT

Other styles of American whiskey include single malt, blended and flavour infusions, as well as those made by craft or micro-distilleries which do not fit into any of the above categories for various production reasons.

Balcones Texas 25

BOURBON

Produced using a mash of 51%-80% corn, and aged in new, charred white-oak barrels, bourbons display the sweeter style associated with American whiskey.

TENNESSEE WHISKEY

Made from a mash of at least 51% corn and aged in new charred-oak barrels, these differ from bourbon in two ways: they must be made in the state of Tennessee, and generally use the Lincoln County Process, whereby the whiskey is filtered through maple charcoal before bottling. The prime example of this is Jack Daniel's, whose iconic No.7 bottling is famous the world over.

Jack Daniel's 8

Jack Daniel's Single Barrel 15

RYE WHISKEY

CANADIAN WHISKY

Although it shares certain characteristics with Scotch whisky and bourbon, Canadian whisky has a style all of its own, thanks to a unique means of production and the influence – sometimes subtle, sometimes obvious – of rye. And, if prohibition nearly killed American whiskey, it helped Canadian distillers to thrive.

Barolo, Enrico Serafino Piedmont, Italy Sophisticated, polished, complex. Intensely elegant nose, with red fruit and spicy notes of liquorice and vanilla with a mouthfeel of austere, smooth tannins and a freshness to the finish. Barolo is a very well-structured red with a racy cut to the tannins due to a long maceration and two years of ageing in oak barrels.			72

LOSE THE STRAW

Straws are the biggest single-use plastic pollution offenders, so we have omitted them from our drinks.
